All Welcome

Dr. Saima Hassan born and raised in Montreal, earned her medical degree, and completed her residency in general surgery at McGill University, and fellowship in Surgical Oncology at the University of Toronto. She obtained her PhD at McGill University, where she studied breast cancer metastasis, and post-doctoral training at Oregon Health and Science University in Portland, Oregon, where she evaluated a targeted therapeutic in triple-negative breast cancer. Dr. Hassan started her practice in 2016 as a surgical oncologist at the CHUM and scientist at the CRCHUM. Dr. Hassan is an Associate Professor and the Scotiabank Chair in the diagnosis and treatment of breast cancer at Université de Montréal. She has been implicated in over 60 clinical trials and involved in over 60 scientific presentations. Through her integrated role as a surgeon, scientist, and academic leader, she is striving to bring novel diagnostic and therapeutic approaches to breast cancer patients.
